

adult development and ageing pdf

Adult development encompasses the changes that occur in biological and psychological domains of human life from the end of adolescence until the end of one's life. These changes may be gradual or rapid, and can reflect positive, negative, or no change from previous levels of functioning. Changes occur at the cellular level and are partially explained by biological theories of adult development ...

Ageing or aging (see spelling differences) is the process of becoming older. The term refers especially to human beings, many animals, and fungi, whereas for example bacteria, perennial plants and some simple animals are potentially biologically immortal. In the broader sense, ageing can refer to single cells within an organism which have ceased dividing (cellular senescence) or to the ...

Fig. 1. During the ageing process, exposure to intrinsic and extrinsic stresses can lead to the accumulation of senescent cells. Senescent cells in tissues (if not cleared by the immune system) produce a SASP which can, over time, induce senescence in neighbouring young cells, resulting in further accumulation of senescent cells.
